WELCOME FROM THE IDS COORDINATOR

Dear student,

On behalf of all faculty and staff in the International Development Studies program, it is my pleasure to extend a very warm welcome to you. We are committed to providing our support to ensure your experience in the program is both enriching and rewarding.

In your courses and other activities at the university, you will discover many new ways of thinking about the complex process of social, cultural, political and economic change we call development. You will also be able to explore the various options designed to address some of the Global South's most pressing problems. We believe both areas of knowledge – the more theoretical discussion about the nature of development and underdevelopment together with a critical awareness of development praxis – are essential in the experience of future academics and practitioners in the IDS field. We look forward to sharing with you the learning experience upon which you are about to embark.

The aim of the program is to help you learn essential critical skills that will be useful in the pursuit of your goals after graduation, either in the job market or in a graduate program. We hope the experience will also provide a means to increase your awareness as a citizen of this country and the world.

For new students: We are certain life in the university will provide plenty of enriching opportunities. Although you are at the threshold of a very exciting time in your life, we recognize that the university can also be a daunting place. There are major academic decisions to make, courses to register, requisites to satisfy. Sometimes it is not easy to know exactly how it all is supposed to work. That's why we are here to help you in your first steps. Do not hesitate to contact us, and once again, welcome to our program!

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT STUDIES PROGRAM

International Development Studies (IDS) is an interdisciplinary program that offers a rewarding undergraduate degree with promising career opportunities in the broad area of International Development. The program brings together a large number of scholars who study and teach various aspects of International Development at York University. IDS provides a richly textured, intellectually rigorous, and highly relevant curriculum that deals with the theories of development as well as the ways in which different development organizations attempt to reach those in need. Through the collaboration of our multidisciplinary faculty members, IDS enjoys the scholarship of a cohesive community of intellectuals from both within and outside of York University.

The objective of the program is to provide an understanding of the challenges and opportunities for the Global South, including Global South communities living in the North, in the face of existing inequalities between rich and poor nations, and the political-institutional, cultural, socio-economic and ecological factors presently affecting international development.

The Program offers a coherent and rigorous set of courses that foster academic excellence in the field of International Development Studies. The program's core courses identify the central issues in the field from a critical social science perspective, offering an inclusive, interdisciplinary, and comparative perspective to interpret the histories, political economies, and cultures of regions in the Global South and their diasporic communities. While highlighting common themes in the field of development, these courses also emphasize the diversity of experiences in the Global South and the regional and sub-regional specificities that exist. The core courses also introduce students to the specific analytical methods and techniques in the field of Development Studies.

Our students are given a thorough understanding of the history, debates, perspectives, institutional approaches, and critiques within the field of international development. Given the program's emphasis on building a bridge between academic discourse and development practice, our students learn how to evaluate the documents of the international donor community (e.g., those of the World Bank and the IMF), and to conduct original research and write development-related proposals.

Learning objectives: As a student in the International Development Studies (IDS) program, you will:

- Engage with an intellectually rigorous and relevant curriculum focused on theories of development, the practice of development organizations, and the efforts to build bridges between theory and practice.
- Learn how to evaluate the policies of the international donor community, conduct original research, and write development-related proposals.
- Choose two of the following six areas of concentration: Culture, Diasporas and migration, Environment, Gender, Political economy, and Politics, governance and policy.
- Enjoy unique opportunities for experiential education through placement and practical courses as well as university offerings in international internships and study-abroad programs.
- Be part and learn from an engaging scholarly community devoted to teaching and research excellence in the IDS field, and access vast resources on international development available across York's faculties, research centres, and programs.
- Join a vibrant community that promotes an understanding of change leading to a more participatory, socially just and environmentally sustainable world.
- Gain tools to access promising career opportunities in the broad area of international development with civil society, governmental, international and other organizations.

Employment prospects for IDS graduates are wide-ranging. They include:

- international development professional in the public, non-governmental or private sector
- officer in a non-governmental, governmental or international agency
- teacher, researcher, policy analyst or academic
- social activist or community development worker
- specialist in topics of international development such as international law, labour, environment, gender, culture, health, ethnicity, politics, demographics or migration
- graduate school admission for relevant fields in Canada and elsewhere.

DEGREE OPTIONS

It is important for you to review the breakdown of the LA&PS' Faculty requirements which can be found on pages 33-36 of this calendar.

International Development Studies offers full and part-time degree programs which lead to either a Bachelor of Arts (BA) degree which requires the successful completion of 90 credits, or an Honours Bachelor of Arts (BA) degree which requires the successful completion of 120 credits. The BA degree program is normally completed over three years of full-time study, and the Honours BA degree is normally completed over four years of full-time study.

International Development Studies can be combined as an Honours Double Major or an Honours Major/Minor program with most other disciplines in the Faculty of Liberal Arts and Professional Studies, and with interdisciplinary subjects such as African Studies or Latin American and Caribbean Studies. You can also combine the study of International Development Studies as an Honours Double Major or Major/Minor program with the Faculties of Environmental Studies, Fine Arts, Health, Science or Engineering.

The IDS Program offers the following degree options available in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies:

- Specialized Honours BA
- Honours BA
- Honours (Double Major) BA
- Honours (Double Major) Interdisciplinary BA.
 - Honours (Major/Minor) BA
 - Honours (Minor) BA
 - BA

The requirements for each degree option are detailed below:

Specialized Honours BA Program (60 credits)
1) Mandatory Core Courses: 24 credits
AP/SOSC 1430 9.00 Introduction to International Development Studies*

AP/SOSC 3800 6.00 Development Studies Research Methods
AP/SOSC 4600 6.00 Advanced Seminar in Development Studies
Select three areas of concentration from:
Area 1: _____ Culture Area 2: _____ Diasporas and Migration
Area 3: _____ Environment Area 4: _____ Gender
Area 5: _____ Political Economy Area 6: _____ Politics, Governance & Policy
2) Areas of Concentration: 30 credits
18 credits - 6 credits in each of three chosen areas of concentration:
Area of concentration _____ : 6 credits _____
Area of concentration _____ : 6 credits _____
Area of concentration _____ : 6 credits _____
12 credits at the 4000-level in two of the three chosen areas of concentration: (Note these courses must be the chosen from the areas that were selected above)

ADVISING

Program-related enquiries can be directed to 416-736-2100 extension 20260 and program advising inquiries can be directed to the IDS Coordinator via email at: idscoord@yorku.ca. Continuing students should make an appointment with the in house academic advisor by contacting the main Social Science Office at 416-736-5054 to book an appointment and/ or enquire about walk-in appointments. Please include your student number and contact information in all correspondence.

For your program advising appointment please prepare the following:

- (1) print your degree progress report - .http://www.registrar.yorku.ca/mydegreeprogress/index.php.
- (2) completed program checklist, the checklist is available from the IDS website - <http://www.registrar.yorku.ca/mydegreeprogress/index.php>.

General student resources can be found at: <http://laps.yorku.ca/student-resources/>, including Academic resources and FAQs: <http://laps.yorku.ca/student-resources/academic-resources-and-faqs/>.

New students: The Student Academic Advising Services (SAAS) offers academic advising for new students in the Faculty of Liberal Arts and Professional Studies. The office is located at 103 Central Square (opposite the Scott Library). Details are available at <http://laps.yorku.ca/student-resources/student-services/academic-advising-services/>. Once classes have started students can make an appointment with the in house academic advisor by contacting the main Social Science Office at 416-736-5054.

General information for new students is available at: <http://laps.yorku.ca/student-resources/new-students/>.

Please remember that advising is a shared relationship between you and the advisor. Advisors can explain policies and regulations or offer academic options. However, you must accept final responsibility for the decisions you make regarding your academic program and standing. In the end, the best way for you to succeed and keep your academic options open is to study hard and achieve good grades!

PROGRAM CHANGE TO IDS

Currently enrolled and registered undergraduate students who want to declare IDS as their major/minor (except for students in the Faculty of Education, Osgoode Hall Law School and Schulich School of Business) can use the on-line tool available on the Office of the Registrar's website: <http://www.registrar.yorku.ca/program/change/>. This page also includes information regarding various aspects of program change and how to pursue it.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT STUDIES SOCIETY (IDSS)

Students pursuing a degree in International Development are strongly encouraged to participate in the activities of the International Development Studies Student Association (IDSSA) which is the student wing of the IDS program.

The Association creates opportunities for students to participate in the process of giving the Program a more creative shape. It also raises the profile of the Program, creates awareness among the faculty and students about development challenges facing the world today, keeps students informed as to job opportunities in the broad field of International Development, and organizes different events for students and faculty. The IDSSA also aims to provide students with an open forum for debates and discussions around developmental issues and concerns. It also is a great place for students to socialize.

GENERAL INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS

PLAGIARISM & ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Students are fully responsible for familiarizing themselves with the York University's regulations on academic integrity. More information is available at:

To understand what constitutes plagiarism, please visit:

STUDENT CODE OF CONDUCT

Information on standards of student conduct, complaint process and students' rights is available at: <http://www.yorku.ca/oscr/pdfs/StudentCodeOfConduct.pdf>.

STUDENT SUPPORT SERVICES

The Centre for Academic Writing is located in S311 Ross (Tel: 416-736-5134).

The Centre offers practical instruction on all aspects of writing to all students in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies. Tutors are available who specialize in working with ESL students or students with disabilities affecting their language learning and language skills. Please visit for more information: <http://www.yorku.ca/laps/writ/centre/>.

The Counselling and Disability Centre (CDC) is located at N110 Bennett Centre (Tel: 416-736-5297).

The Centre offers personal counseling, skills development workshops on time-management, stress management and test preparation. Also, support is provided to students with mental health issues and learning disabilities. More information is available at: <http://www.yorku.ca/cds/>.

GRADE RE-APPRAISALS

Whenever a reported grade is incorrect, the grade reappraisal process should be initialized by contacting the Course Director. If you are unable to resolve the problem at this stage, you may apply for a grade re-appraisal within 21 days after the release of final grades. If the Course Director is not available, please report to the department, prior the deadline. You can also contact the Registrar's Office (www.registrar.yorku.ca) if you have additional concerns.

More details available at: <http://www.registrar.yorku.ca/grades/reappraisal/>.

All Grade Re-appraisal requests must be submitted to the department offering the course. For Social Science courses, please contact Jacqueline Selman (S744 Ross/416-736-5054).

REPEATING A COURSE

A passed or failed course may be repeated once for degree credit. When a course is repeated for degree credit, the second grade will be calculated in the grade point average. However, the record of both the first and the second attempt will appear on the transcript. This restriction is also applicable to cross-listed courses or course credit exclusions.

More information is available at: <http://www.yorku.ca/secretariat/policies/document.php?document=92>.

PETITIONING A COURSE

Prior to submitting a petition, it is important to review the University's and the Faculty's rules and regulations. Students must make an advising appointment to speak to an advisor if they wish to submit a petition by calling the main office at 416-736-5054. After a clear understanding of the regulations is obtained, students may submit a written request to waive one of the regulations or deadlines.

The petitions process is initiated by completing a Petition Package. Complete details are available at: <http://www.registrar.yorku.ca/petitions/academic/>.

GENERAL EDUCATION COURSES

Effective Fall/Winter 2014-15, a minimum of 21 General Education credits is required as follows:

- 6.00 credits in Natural Science (NATS)
- A 9.00 credit approved general education course in the Social Science or Humanities departments

- A 6.00 credit approved general education course in the opposite department (either Social Science or Humanities) to the 9.00 credit course in Social Science or Humanities

For example if a student enrolls in a nine credit first or second year General Education Social Science such as AP/SOSC 1000 9.00 that student will need to enroll in a six credit first or second year General Education Humanities such as AP/HUMA 1720 6.00 or vice versa.

For students completing an Honours degree in the IDS program, students fulfill this requirement by completing the following courses:

Natural Science	NATS XXXX	6.00
Humanities	HUMA 1000/2000	6.00/9.00
Social Science	SOSC 1000/2000	6.00/9.00= 21.00 credits

i) it is the student's responsibility to ensure that the courses that are selected for the General Education requirement are on the list of approved Gen. Ed. Courses.

For details regarding the general education requirement and to determine which course can be used for this requirement go to http://www.yorku.ca/laps/courses/gen_education.html.

ii) if a student enrolls in AP/SOSC 1000 9.00 the student needs to complete a HUMA 6.00 course and vice versa.

iii) for students who entered the program in FW 2014 or later, please note that if you are taking

SOSC 1430 9.0 to satisfy Major requirements, you will need to take a different Social Science course to fulfill General Education Requirements.

FIRST YEAR - WHAT TO EXPECT

First year course selection: The following courses are recommended by the program:

- ✓ AP/SOSC 1430 9.00 - Introduction to International Development Studies
- ✓ 1000-level 6 credit NATS course
- ✓ 1000-level 6 or 9 credit HUMA or SOSC course to partly fulfill General Education requirement

You may also consider adding courses outside the Major. It is strongly recommended students do not exceed 30 credits in the first year.

- ✓ 6 or 3 credit outside the Major course – which may be an introductory level course in a second Major or Minor
- ✓ 3 credit outside the Major course

Introduction to International Development Studies (AP/SOSC 1430 9.0): This course introduces students to the field of international development studies, which has emerged as a result of efforts to bring about development in the Global South. It uses a critical and historical approach drawing on concrete case studies, to examine the assumptions, practices and consequences of development.

General Education Courses in First Year: As part of the first year experience, students in the Faculty of Liberal Arts and Professional Studies complete General Education Courses in Humanities, Natural Science or Social Science.

Examples include (not all these courses may be offered every year; for details see the York University Course website at <https://w2prod.sis.yorku.ca/Apps/WebObjects/cdm>):

Humanities

- Cultures of Resistance in the Americas
- Culture and Society in East Asia
- Concepts of Male and Female in the West
- Existence, Freedom and Meaning
- Introduction to Caribbean Studies

Natural Science

- Scientific Change
- Evolution
- The Genetic Revolution
- Science, Technology and the Environment

Social Science

- Understanding Social Theory
- International Migration
- Human Rights and Canadian Minorities

Courses Outside the Major in First Year

The first year experience may also include courses outside the major or an introductory course in a second major or minor. Examples include:

- Introduction to Social Anthropology
- Elementary Spanish
- War, Revolution and Society
- Introduction to Politics
- Introduction to Psychology
- Introduction to Sociology

GENERAL EDUCATION COURSE LIMIT

A maximum of 36 credits in General Education will count towards the degree. Students who are required to exceed the 36 credit maximum because of program/degree requirements must obtain permission.

GPA CALCULATION

This link will assist you calculate your Grade Point Average (GPA):
www.yorku.ca/laps/students/gpa.html.

To graduate with BA (90 credit), the minimum Overall Grade Point Average is 4.0 (C)
To graduate with BA Hons (120 credit), the minimum Overall Grade Point Average is 5.0 (C+)

DEGREE PROGRESS REPORT

A useful tool to help you track your progress to your degree is the Degree Progress Report (DPR): <http://www.registrar.yorku.ca/mydegreeprogress/index.php>.

CERTIFICATE IN REFUGEE AND MIGRATION STUDIES

This General Certificate is awarded to York University students who, in addition to completing all undergraduate degree requirements of their Faculties, also complete courses with a focus on refugee and migration issues.

The faculty members associated with the Centre for Refugee Studies are internationally recognized, published scholars in the refugee and migration field, whose work represents a multiplicity of academic disciplines. Building on York's already strong interdisciplinary tradition, they take an interdisciplinary approach to development and refugee and migration issues, and demonstrate an ongoing commitment to Canada's dedication to solving international problems.

It is the objective of the Centre to build on its current strengths and on those of York's Faculties in order to generate resources to support scholars in their interdisciplinary research, to offer scholarships to excellent students and, more generally creates unique research frameworks within an international network. The Center offers students focused study on refugee issues, and formal recognition of the knowledge leading to the York University General Certificate in Refugee and Migration Studies.

For more information: http://crs.yorku.ca/certificate_program.

WORK AND STUDY ABROAD: YORK INTERNATIONAL

The IDS program encourages students to gain experience abroad, through internships, exchange programs, summer abroad courses, etc. York International assists all visiting international students as well as domestic and international students who wish to study or work abroad. Visit the York International portal at <http://yorkinternational.yorku.ca/>

The York University International Internship Program (YIIP) provides both York undergraduate and graduate students a non-credit opportunity to apply their academic knowledge to an international work environment. This allows participants the opportunity to enhance their job-related skills in an international and intercultural setting. York University offers funding for successful International Internship applicants. For more information: <http://yorkinternational.yorku.ca/go-global/intern-abroad/>

The York Exchange Program allows students at York to earn part of their degree credits at a post-secondary institution in another country. At present, York has formal exchange programs with universities in more than thirty countries.

The York Exchange program allows students to apply credits earned abroad toward their York degree. Students on an official exchange pay their tuition to York University (not the host institution) and are eligible to apply for the York International Mobility Award (YIMA) for financial assistance. Grades for courses taken at external institutions are not listed on the York University transcript and are not included in the calculation of grade point averages. The credits, however, do count toward the York University degree.

The International Development Studies Society (IDSS) can help you link with IDS students who have participated in a program abroad and would like to share their experience: IDSSA@yorku.ca.

STUDENT AWARDS & ESSAY PRIZES

AWARDS

International Development Studies Program Honours Award

This award recognizes academic excellence in a fourth-year IDS honours major. The Scholarship is awarded in October of each year to a fourth-year IDS honours major with an outstanding academic profile and a demonstrated record of good citizenship within IDS and York University.

Department of Social Science Bursary

This award is an annual prize given to a student who is majoring in one of the Social Science programs, who has completed between 30 and 60 credits with a GPA of 6.00 or higher, who is currently registered in a minimum of 18 credits, who is a Canadian citizen/permanent resident, Ontario resident, and who demonstrates financial need. The Office of Student Financial Services will select the recipient in the Fall.

Ellen Baar Award

This annual award honours the memory of Professor Ellen Baar, a member in the Department of Social Science from 1971 until her death in 1998 who was strongly committed to the Department's interdisciplinary teaching. It is given to the student entering his / her final year as a major in an Interdisciplinary program within the Department of Social Science who received the highest GPA in his/ her third year of studies. The recipient must have completed at least two Department courses in the program, and demonstrates financial need. (If the student with the highest GPA does not demonstrate financial need, a transcript notation will record his / her achievement, and the funds will be distributed to the next-highest student who meets the criteria.) Applications may be obtained at the office of the Department's chair or on-line.

Lillian Lerman Award

The Lillian Lerman Award honours Lillian Lerman, a member of the Department who retired in 1991, in recognition of her dedication and contribution to undergraduate teaching. It is given to the student writing the most outstanding essay in a 1000-level Social Science course. Nominations are made by course directors; for further information, please consult the Department's chair.

Gordon Lowther Award

The Gordon Lowther Award is an annual prize given to the student entering second year and enrolling in an Interdisciplinary program within the Department of Social Science who achieved the highest GPA in his / her first year. The student must be currently registered in a minimum of 18 credits, a Canadian citizen/permanent resident, Ontario resident, and demonstrate financial need.

ESSAY PRIZES

Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies Essay Prizes

Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies Essay Prizes are awarded annually to four students in the Faculty, one at each of the 1000, 2000, 3000 and 4000 levels, judged to have written the most outstanding essays at their levels (of at least 1000 words). There are also four honourable-mention prizes, and all essays appear in the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies yearly publication, Prize Winning Essays. The essays are nominated by professors.

Michael Baptista Essay Prize

This award, sponsored with CERLAC (the Centre for Research on Latin American and Caribbean), was established by friends of Michael Baptista together with the Royal Bank of Canada to honour his Guyanese / Caribbean roots, his dedication and achievement at the Royal Bank, and his continued and unqualified love of learning. Two prizes are awarded annually, one to an undergraduate student and one to a graduate student, in recognition of outstanding scholarly essays in the humanities, social science, business or law of relevance to Latin American and Caribbean Studies, and are presented at a lecture by a visiting Latin American or Caribbean speaker.

IDS COURSES - FALL 2015 AND WINTER 2016

PLEASE NOTE:

- STUDENTS MUST SATISFY BOTH THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE IDS PROGRAM AS WELL AS THOSE OF THE FACULTY OF LIBERAL ARTS & PROFESSIONAL STUDIES.
- COURSES CANNOT BE DOUBLE-COUNTED. EVEN THOUGH A COURSE MAY FULFILL MORE THAN ONE REQUIREMENT THE ASSOCIATED CREDITS CANNOT BE COUNTED TWICE.

OTHER COURSES MAY BE SUBSTITUTED WITH THE WRITTEN APPROVAL OF THE PROGRAM COORDINATOR (PRIOR TO ENROLMENT). A full course outline must be provided with the request. This can be obtained from the instructor or the department that offers the course.

CORE COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

The core courses are designed to be taken consecutively.*

AP/SOSC 1430/9 9.00 Introduction to International Development Studies (Formerly Introduction to Development Studies)

For students enrolled in the program prior to FW 2014-15, this 9-credit course fulfills General Education requirements as well as the IDS major requirement. All 9 credits count toward the 120 credits required for the Honours BA degree, but only 6 credits from this course will go toward the IDS major.

Effective 2014-15, students enrolled in the program, are required to take SOSC 1430 9.00 AND a Social Science general education course. Six of the nine credits from SOSC 1430 will count toward the program's requirements and the remaining three credits will count toward electives/courses outside the major.

Course Director: TBA

This foundation course introduces students to the field of International Development Studies. It adopts an interdisciplinary approach to study the theory and practice of development, and draws from the works of historians, sociologists, political scientists, anthropologists, and economists to introduce relevant concepts and theories of development. The course examines various approaches to development and explores their theoretical and cultural assumptions, and their concrete application in diverse historical and social contexts. The course helps students understand the processes that created underdevelopment, the forces that contribute to the persistence of this condition, and the struggles for equitable and sustainable development in the current global system. As part of the Foundations Program, this course has been especially designed to help students develop specific academic skills in the areas of critical thinking, reading and writing, and to challenge them to apply these skills to the field of international development studies.

AP/SOSC 2800 6.00 Development in Comparative & Historical Perspective

Course Director: M. Mekouar

This course offers a critical overview of the state of development studies for students who have some background in International Development. Its primary objective is to familiarize students with the present and past development theories, discourses/perspectives and issues. Besides, it makes an effort to analyze the role of key international organizations, such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, in constructing the 'global framework for development'.

In reviewing a range of theories of and approaches to development – from modernization, and neo-Marxist theories of dependency to neo-liberal, post-modern, post-Marxist and feminist perspectives, the course provides a forum for students to examine, discuss, and debate the current changes in development studies and to apply various theories and approaches to the analysis of contemporary development issues. Students will have the opportunity to explore how the focus of development shifted from 'economic growth' to the improvement in the human conditions.

Note: Students must complete AP/SOSC 1430 9.00 prior to enrolment in AP/SOSC 2800 6.00

AP/SOSC 3800 6.00 Development Studies Research Methods

Course Director: TBA

This course introduces class-members to the principle research methods and techniques used primarily in International Development. Since development research and policy agendas are undergoing considerable evolution and change, it focuses on the more practical issues and problems of researching development policies, programs, and projects. In addition to introducing research methods commonly used in the Social Sciences, this course aims to aid students in learning about applied research methods and evaluation practices, both qualitative and quantitative. It places the notion of impact assessment in the broader context of international development exploring key methods, techniques, and practices that are widely used by both development agencies and practitioners.

Prerequisite: AP/SOSC 2800 6.00. Students must complete AP/SOSC 2800 6.00 prior to enrolment in AP/SOSC 3800 6.00

AP/SOSC 4600 6.00 Advanced Seminar in Development Studies

Course Director: M. Mekouar

The aim of this seminar is to give students some specialized knowledge about the present discourses/perspectives in development, some contemporary development issues/challenges, and the potential of various agents in addressing these issues/challenges. The focus of the course is on globalization that most directly sets the current context of international development. In addition to identifying the trends in the contemporary phase of global economic restructuring, this course provides informative and useful insights into the construction of a 'homogeneous world' through cultural and political globalizations. It also explores various debates on globalization and takes a critical look at the differential impacts of globalization on countries and communities in the world. One of the primary objectives of this course is to present a comparative discussion of differences and commonalities among mainstream, critical, post-modern, and post-structuralist analyses of development which have appeared over the last two decades. It opens up the possibility for new ways of thinking about the problems of and prospects for development in the twenty-first century. This course also examines the contemporary agenda of international development within the changing structures of the global political economy.

Prerequisite: AP/SOSC 2800 6.00 and AP/SOSC 3800 6.00. Students must complete AP/SOSC 2800 6.00 and AP/SOSC 3800 6.00 prior to enrolment in AP/SOSC 4600 6.00

NON-CORE IDS COURSES

The following information on non-core courses is provided as a service to the students. Official course information is available in the York Courses Website at <https://w2prod.sis.yorku.ca/Apps/WebObjects/cdm>.

Offered: Winter 2016, R 2:30-5:30

Area: Political Economy; Politics, Governance and Policy

AP/SOSC 2801 3.0 W - Approaches to Economies of Development (new course)

Course Director: TBA

This course re-introduces basic economic concepts and reasoning to practices of development for IDS students. Standard economic textbooks introduce students to ways in which economists understand the economy through micro-economic factors underlying consumer behavior, utility, and the interaction of supply and demand; and macroeconomic concepts of economic measurement, economic growth, output and input markets, aggregate of supply and demand, fiscal and monetary policy, unemployment, and balance of payments.

Taking a trans-and interdisciplinary approach, the course provides broader contexts and more heterogeneous approaches to economic reasoning and concepts as they apply to development. The focus is on how historical changes, cultural norms, and socioeconomic institutions constrain, or enhance, choices possible for different groups of people at particular times and places in sites of development. Basic economic concepts for development within the Global South will be studied within their social context and as part of broader relationships.

In connecting economics to other disciplines and spheres of life, this course highlights an understanding of development often absent in more orthodox approaches to economics. Students will re-explore economic reasoning in nontechnical language and inquire about the conditions for collaboration and disarticulation in development; why “underdeveloped” economies are organized the way they are; and whether it is possible for economic efficiency and social justice to coexist in development.

This course is designed for students who have had at least one semester of prior study in economics (or, alternatively, have received permission of the instructor) and who wish to strengthen their economic understanding of international development. Students who do not have the prerequisite may consider taking AP/ECON 1900 3.00 – Microeconomics for Life during the Fall semester (in the Economics program; may count as elective for degree but does not provide credit for IDS major) and AP/SOSC 2801 during the Winter semester.

Prerequisites: AP/ECON 1000/1010 or AP/ECON 1900 (or the equivalent of at least one semester of introductory economics) and AP/SOCS1430, or permission of the instructor.

Offered: FW 2015-16, T 2:30-5:30

Area: Gender

AP/SOSC 3543 6.0 - Introduction to Gender and Development: Key Themes in Critique and Practice

Course director: TBA

This course will introduce students to the history, theory and practice of “Gender and Development”. We examine the emergence of women as a constituency in development and the ways in which feminists have engaged with development as well as the ways in which development institutions have appropriated feminist and gender discourses and practices. The first part will lay the conceptual/ analytical foundations to understanding women, men, gender and development while the second part of the course will cover the history of and various issues related to GAD. At the end of the course students will have acquired necessary theoretical and conceptual skills to analyse from a gender perspective. Readings will include journal articles and book chapters, most of which are available online through the York library. Some material may be posted on moodle.

Learning will be organised around class lectures, presentations and discussions based on assigned readings, case studies and films. Students are expected to actively participate in class discussions based on the readings. Students are expected to come prepared with the readings to class and actively participate in discussions of the readings. All course-related information will be available on moodle.

Prerequisite: None.

Offered: FW 2015-16, W 2:30-5:30

Area: All

AP/SOSC 3801 6.0 - Understanding Development Planning and Management

Course Director: TBA

This course offers a concise, yet critical and systematic analysis of development planning and management. It emphasizes a close link between development theory and practice, and thus aims to provide a deeper understanding of the processes by which development plans are formulated, projects are designed, and Programs are implemented. It demonstrates how the changing language of development is pushing a reconsideration of the tools and methods by which development is planned and managed at different levels—local, national, and international. The course draws from the accounts of scholars, policy-makers, and managers and explores relevant case studies to identify the ways in which pro-people policies/projects/programs are both designed and implemented.

Offered: Winter 2016, M 11:30-2:30

Areas: Environment; Politics, Governance and Policy

AP/SOSC 3802 3.0 W - Policy Making in Context: Development and Sustainability (new course)

Course director: N. Dao

This course explores the close relationship between sustainability and policy processes through the examination of policy debates around key development issues. Linking environmental sustainability with poverty reduction and social justice, and making science and technology work for the poor, have become central practical, political and moral challenges for development. Yet, despite growing international attention and investment policy attempts often fail. Why is this the case and what can be done about it? Students explore possible answers by examining different pathways, approaches, tools and methods of moving forward with sustainability.

Following an introductory section where central concepts and frameworks are developed, the course moves on to explore real-life and real livelihood experiences for policy debates. Examples include debates surrounding agri-food system governance, watershed management, and energy policy processes. The focus is on understanding the dynamic interrelationships between local context and wider national and international policy processes. Through a discussion on the values-based aims of sustainability, students learn why some approaches are dominant, even when they do not produce the desired results. This knowledge serves as the basis to identify alternative 'pathways' to respond more effectively to the challenges of sustainability.

Students will apply the knowledge and skills acquired to respond to a concrete sustainability challenge. Small teams of 'consultants' are assigned an urgent sustainability policy issues in development to investigate. Each team conducts desk-based research and prepares a short report, complete with technical findings and policy recommendations, which they will defend before a panel of 'expert decision makers' (the class).

Prerequisites: None.

Offered: Winter 2016, T 2:30-5:30

Area 1: Culture

AP/SOSC 4604 3.0 - Aspects of Development Research: the Field Experience

Course Director: J. Hellman

This course looks at the field experience through the lens of specific case studies. The objective is to uncover through an interdisciplinary approach the issues, ethics and challenges of studying different development practices in the field. The seminar examines both new and long utilized methods and approaches to the study of the people who become the subjects of development research but also - sometimes only a generation later - the protagonists in development projects. Using different ways of understanding the context out of which knowledge is produced and put into development practice, the course will consider what have been regarded over time as ethical and valuable practices in field work. Topics emphasized will vary from year to year depending on the instructor.

Course credit exclusions: None.

Offered FW 2015-16, R 5-8

Areas: All

AP/SOSC 4605 6.0 - International Development Placement Course (new course)

This course allows students to combine learning about the workings of development non-governmental organizations, through a hands-on experience with an NGO and more conventional academic activities in the classroom. The unpaid work placement will be fulfilled with an NGO involved in international and/or local development within the Greater Toronto Area: a) an organization working on the implementation of development programs and projects in an area or country within the Global South; or b) an organization connected to work in community development, environmental protection, support to immigrant, or refugee populations. The student will become involved in the work of the organization by contributing to the development and implementation of some of the organization's programs and activities.

Students' work will be supervised by a staff member of the organization offering the placement. The job assignment will be agreed upon between the two parties with the assistance of the course director before the beginning of the fall term. The organization where the student is placed will ensure appropriate support for the successful completion of the assigned tasks. Direct involvement in the work of an NGO will afford students a unique opportunity to gain practical knowledge of the day-to-day practices of development planning and management. Within these organizations students will attend planning meetings, support research initiatives, contribute to knowledge-mobilization programs, and participate in other routine activities.

In addition to the tasks undertaken as part of the job placement portion of the course, students will also meet in seminars and complete coursework aimed at providing the necessary intellectual tools to contextualize the significance of specific development interventions and practices. Class will meet every two weeks during Fall and Winter. During the Fall students will prepare for their placement. The actual work placement (one day per week, not on the same day as class) will happen during the Winter semester.

Prerequisite: SOSC 1430 and SOSC 2800, B+ average in MAJOR, or permission of the instructor.

Offered Fall 2015, W 2:30-5:30

Area: Culture; Politics, Governance and Policy; Political Economy

AP/SOSC 4607 3.0 - Indigeneity and International Development (new course)

Course director: M. Gonzalez

This course examines the significance of discourses on indigeneity for the theory and practice of international development. The course sets out the multiple, purposive, and often contradictory articulations of indigeneness as a site of agency and contention in the interactions between indigenous communities and international development agents, such as NGOs, international organizations, states, and funding agencies.

The course reviews contending conceptual understandings of indigenoussness and ethnic identity (including primordialism, instrumentalism, Marxism, feminism, decolonizing scholarship, and post-colonial / post-structuralist approaches) in relation to forms of resistance, representation, engagement and countenance of alternative forms of development. Collaborative research methodologies, in particular their potential to construct bridges and intercultural dialogues between agents in knowledge production interacting in international development, will also be explored. The course builds on these theoretical foundations and conceptual landscapes and then moves on to a systematic analysis of experiences and case studies emerging from the Global South.

Key concepts and processes to be examined in this course include: indigenoussness, power, knowledge, identity, representation, gender, race, ethnicity, community, territory, citizenship, class, indigenous agency and mobilization, international law on the rights of indigenous peoples, neocolonialism and development.

Prerequisites: None.
